

Thonon - November 2012

The Comenius adventure is waiting for us.

Our students are well prepared, so we need the biggest suitcases to travel to France.

The Reformation Wall

The wall stretches for 100 m and honours many of the main individuals and events of the Protestant Reformation. The most important person for Geneva was Calvin (second from left), who lived in Geneva.

Will we get a monument as well?

For a start we discover international delicacies.

The Comenius project leads us to the top.

It's not the Mount Everest, but we survived the first adventure.

Everybody is enjoying the wonderful countryside.

We are above the clouds that cover the Lake Geneva. That is the right moment for a picnic.

In the mountains and in friendships: We never loose the right direction.

You can't see anything clearly? Well, the French teachers are too fast for German photographers.

Or: When Comenius teachers come together there is always a lot of action.

As we all know, there is also a lot of action, when the students come together. In a short moment they will have a debate about human rights.

The Comenius project is alive - look at the flags at the entrance.
At that moment we didn't know that the hall is the perfect place for dance events.

United Nations - Geneva - and the great politics
Now we are sitting at the back, but in the future we might sit on the podium.

The UN building: Whether you like the architecture or not - the building and its monumental style and size is impressive.

If a debate is too stressful, just have a look at the colourful roof.
The perfect moment for day dreaming. That could be the reason why some negotiations take a lot of time.

After politics it was time for sports. The cathedral of Geneva was waiting for us.

Some students and teachers climbed the cathedral and enjoyed the wonderful view.

The Comenius-Project is not only about sightseeing. There is always time to get to know each other and work on different projects like human rights, United Nations, citizenship, integration, biodiversity,...

One project was called “Inclusion - Exclusion”
How does it feel to belong to a group and how does it feel to be excluded?

People of different countries feel united. We all belong together. “We are family...”

We all have a different point of view and sometimes it seems as if we all move in a different direction.

After the creative workshop we were ready for “Gangnam Style” and prepared for the school dance. I wasn’t sure: Is it Thonon or Hollywood?

The town of Thonon gave us a warm welcome. (and wine)

International cooperation works and can be seen in new hairstyles.
